

TEST CASE 1

Everything goes right

R1: the engineer is confirmed free, released and held.

Dots: run this case tomorrow

TEST CASE 2

Nobody answers

A manager misses the deadline.
Does it go to the backup?

Dots: run this case tomorrow

TEST CASE 3

Two deals, one person

R3: another deal wants the project manager.

Dots: run this case tomorrow

TEST CASE 4

Release refused

R2: the only other firewall expert cannot be released.

Dots: run this case tomorrow

TEST CASE 5

A rule broken

Try to sign before the plan is approved. Is it refused, with the rule shown?

Dots: run this case tomorrow

TEST CASE · OURS

One of our own cases

Dots: run this case tomorrow

Decision seats for tomorrow's live run

Write your name where you would decide in real life. One owner and one backup per seat.

DECISION	OWNER	BACKUP
Is the demand real enough to start?
Is the requirement complete enough for staffing?
Is the person really free?
Can they be released?
Is the shortfall a real gap?
What is the response to the gap?
Which clashing hold stays?
Approve the plan

Where are you on the ladder?

8	Decide what next I can weigh the evidence and decide what to take forward.	Your dot
7	Rules for moves I can set the rules for moving people up to the work they are qualified for.	Your dot
6	Judge a working version I can test a working version and say what it got wrong.	Your dot
5	When things go wrong I can write the rule for an exception: what happens, who decides, by when.	Your dot
4	Who decides I know which decisions need a person, who, and what they need to see.	Your dot
3	The result we want I can say the result we want, and how a record would prove it.	Your dot
2	The real problem I see where records and reality part, at each stage of a deal.	Your dot
1	Why we are here I know why we are here and what we decide at the end.	Your dot

✂ Cut along the dashed lines.

TOMORROW'S HEADLINE

The headline I want to read at 16:40 tomorrow

TOMORROW'S HEADLINE

The headline I want to read at 16:40 tomorrow

TOMORROW'S HEADLINE

The headline I want to read at 16:40 tomorrow

TOMORROW'S HEADLINE

The headline I want to read at 16:40 tomorrow

Parking wall

Questions we come back to. Each one gets an owner before the day ends.

Ask the builders

Write a question. The engineers answer the top three at 13:15.